MRS. KORUT NOT TO BE TRIED-WHAT THE PROSE CUTION MEAN TO PROVE

The personal appearance of Henry Edward and Joseffa Konut, the Bohemmans who are accused of murder in the first degree in causing death by committing arson in the first degree, was greatly improved yesterday when they appeared for the second day of their trial in the Court of General Sessions. They were more neatly dressed than on the previous day and had apparently passed through the unusual experience of a washing. The benches were filled with Bohemians, many of whom lived in the big tenement houses at Nos. 404 and 406 East Sixty-fourth-st, and will be called as witnesses.

District-Attorney Martine and Assistant District-Attorney Martine and Assistant District-Attorney Fitzgerald appeared for the prosecution and George M. Cartis, the priseners' counsel, continued for two hours the work of getting a jury which had been partly accomplished on Thursday. Four places in the jury box were vacant when the court opened. They were filled by the acceptance as jurors of John Neil, of No. 247 West Eighty-eighth-st., John H. DeMeyer, of Third-ave, and Nimeteenth-st., Albert Aton, of No. 748 Sixth-ave., and Thomas Golding. of No. 158 West Thirty-sixth-st. Mr. Fitzgerald then asked that the indictment be dismissed as against the woman, Joseffa Kohut. He said that there was some evidence against her, but it was not strong, and it appeared evident that what she had done was the result of her husband's influence or coercion. The motion was granted, and the charge against Mrs. Kohut hwad in the rear on the second floor of No. 404 East Sixty-fourth-st., where a fire occurred on the night of November 22. Mrs. Fialka and her children, who lived on the top floor over the Kohuts, were sufficiated by smoke from the fire. That fire, it was charged, had been deliberately caused by Henry and Edward Si00 insurance in the Hamburg-Bremen Insurance Company on the furniture in their small room, when an inventory showed was not worth more than $100. Mr. Fitzgerald also told of the discovery of the fire in the way which the witnesses afterwar had furnished diagrams, none had been found incorrect.

Simon Siegel, eighteen years old, was offered as a Bohemman interpreter, and said that he had been in this country for four years, and understood and spoke both English and Bohemman. Ex-Judge Curtis questioned the young man closely, but did not succeed in betraying him into errors.

William Boll, who spoke German, and answered through the regular interpreter, Philip Dollin, was the first witness. He said that he lived on the second floor of No. 406 East Sixty-fourth-st., and in the next room to that occupied by Kehut. He gross for a drink of water at 1 a. m. on November 23, and a few minutes later heard the report of an explosion and smelt smoke. He got out on the fire-secape and walked to the next window, which was in the Kehuts' room. He looked in and saw flames in three places, in front of the stove, on the table and on the mantel. The fire on the mantel showed a bluish flame. He went along the fire-escape to the room of Anton Steitz and aroused him. He helped to take ont of the building his own wife and children. Ex-Judge Curtis cross-examined the witness sharply, but did not shake the main facts of his story.

Anton Steitz, an intelligent man, speaking good witness sharply, but did not shake the main facts of his story.

Anton Steitz, an intelligent man, speaking good English, was next examined. He was janitor of the tenement for two years until about a month before the fire. He said that he was awakened on the night of the fire by a rapping on his window, and found William Boll outside. He went out on the fire-escape, and looking into the room occupied by the Kohuts saw it on fire in three places. He called for water, and by using five pulls of water put out the fire. He saw a light shining in over the door to the hall, and opening it found that the stairs were on fire. He shut the door on the flames. He saw a demijohn on the floor that smelled as if it had contained benzine. He also saw in another room two trunks, one of which contained empty cars. A can lay on the floor. The witness said that he knew Mrs. Finika, who hved on the top floor, and had seen her alive on the day before the fire. Mr. Fitzgeraid asked some questions about the chidren, and some of thera were answered, although Mr. Corkis objected.

The case will go on on Monday.

THE NEW STEERAGE RATES.

THEIR EFFECT ON THE TRANSATLANTIC LINES. Five days have passed since the new schedule of steerage rates, adopted by the English transattantic lines, went into effect and no rumors of cutting have been heard. It is believed that the rates will be maintained and that the North Atlantic Conference will be resignalized on a firm foundation. The managers in L verpool are about to light their pipes of peace, and as soon as they agree upon rates and but them into practical effect, the conference there and the one in New-York will resume their proper functions.

There is some disappointment among the Continues that the Euglish lines fixed their rates as lew as $22 to and from German ports and $23 to and from Secadinavan ports, and there is taked of a readjustment of rates by the Continuental lines to continue to them. The steam Lioval had been allowed its Seandingvian rates from $25 to $20, and several days ago, before the English Line agreed upon the new schedule, the Flunyall Line agreed upon the line agreed upon the new schedule, the Flunyall Line agreed upon the new schedule, the Flunyall Line agreed upon the line agreed upon the line agreed upon the new schedule, the Flunyall Line agreed upon the line

NOT ENOUGH CHARGED FOR WATER RENTS MANY BUILDINGS PAYING TOO LITTLE-A COM-PLAINT ABOUT THE REINSPECTION.

PLAINT ABOUT THE REINSPECTION.

Commissioner Squire at the beginning of the year ordered a reinspection of all the buildings in the city to accertain whether they were charged with the proper amount of water rent due. These inspectious resulted in the discovery that thousands of buildings were not charged with the full amount of water rents for extra closets, baths, etc. The additional charges already placed on the books amount to St19,271, and the total additional charges discovered by these inspections will amount to about $204,000. The revenue collected from the water service for 1885 was as follows: For regular water rents and penalties, $1,374,172 14; through meters, $720,272 69; for building purposes, $27,967; total, $2,122,411 83. This is an increase of $147,276 over the amount collected in 1884. The amount of unpaid water rents returned to the Clerk of Arrears for collection is $164,689 55, making the total revenue from the water service for 1885 $2,287,101. It is expected that the natural increase in water rents from the growth of population and business will produce an increase of at least $350,000 during the present year.

To the Editor of The Tribune. SIR: One of the greatest impositions, to put it mildly, new going on in connection with the Department of Public Works is in the Bureau of Water Register. It has of late been sending notices to various tenement-house owners that upon reinspection of the premises No. 10

owners that upon reinspection of the premises No. 10
Blank-st, it was found that the whole amount of water rants on the premises for 1895 has not been paid and that the balance must be paid or it will be placed as a lien against the property, etc., etc.
Personally I know of several persons who have paid their water tax months ago, or supposed they had, but on going to hequire what the trouble is they find they are being charged water rent on an old-fashioned vault, into which a drop of pure croton has never been and never will go. If they refane to pay they are told that it will be placed as a lien against the property. "Hero's a protty blaw-de-do!" Squire may be a puet, but I fail to see any neetry in this sort of business.

POLITICAL INFLUENCE IN THE SCHOOLS.

A proposition is now being talked of among school commussioners to transfer the power of appointing members of the Board of Lducation from the Mayor to the Judges of the State courts in the edity. The project has only just been proposed, but it said to be favorably regarded by many commussioners. The connection between Mayor Grace and these appointments has directed public attentionates. The connection between Mayor Grace and these appointments has directed public attention to the political influence that may be introduced into the schools, and it is said that the Mayor has not used his influence any more than his predecessors. THE STOCK EXCHANGE OF MANY MINDS.

The several plans for the alteration of the present Stock Exchange Building have each earnest advocates. The balloting was not heavy yesterday, because the poils will not be closed until 2 p. m. on Monday, but the discussion was animated. Massimeetings were held in different corners of the board room during the day, and the flood of eloquence was so great that the market was somewhat depressed at the close. While it is impossible to foreteil the result of the vote, it was a common opinion that nothing would be done because of the multiplicity of schemes. Brokers seemed to waver between the extremes, and while some urged that the present space could be utilized to better advantage, others argued that if any changes should be made the purchase of the whole Wall-st, front was the best plan. The members of the Committee of Arrangements were positive that the present building could be altered so as to meet the wants of the Exchange, while the Committee on Site was sure that the acquisition of the next adjoining lots would be the plan adopted.

A meeting of employes of the Stock Exchange was held yesterday to form a mutual benefit association. A committee of five R. J. Hutchinson, J. T. Kehoe, Charles H. Deacon, J. P. Burus and William Medler, was appointed to prepare a plan of organization. There are nearly 200 employes and the attendance held out promise of success to the new moyement. The temporary officers were: President, Alexander Davidson, and secretary, W. J. Morrison. THE STOCK EXCHANGE OF MANY MINDS.

FRYING TO PAY BILLS WITH FORGED CHECKS.

Two young men, stylishly dressed, called at the office of The Port Chester Journal on Wednesday, representing themselves as the advance agents of the "Thespian Opera Company," to secure the insertion of an advertisement announcing that "The Lights of London" would be performed in Smith's Opera House, known as the Skaturg Kink, on Monday and Tuesday ovenings of next week. On Thursday afternoon the men called again and offered to pay for the advertisement, offering in payment of a bill of $4 a check for $10 on a New-York bank, purporting to be signed by Bater Claytan, treasurer of the opera company. Mr. Camp, the forenam of the typostriphical department, became suspicious of his customers and refused to feecive the check, and required the stylish agent of the opera company to give him an order upon the treasurer of that concern for the amount due, which he did. The agents then called upon C. Fehrs, proprietor of the new Opera. House, and expressed a deproprietor of the board of their company. The strangers then went to the factory of Pond, West & Simons and represented that they had been directed to apply to them to have the checks cashed, but they failed to realize their expectations there and next called upon Supervisor William Ryan and said that Ernest Simons had directed them to get Mr. Simons to indorse the check and he cash it. A visit to John W. Lounshury also failed in its object. The strangers then forged the name of Mr. Simons as an indorser of the note and it was cashed by Samuel Seott, a dry-goods merchant. It was shortly afterward discovered, that the indorsement was a forger of the forgers they had disappeared. FRYING TO PAY BILLS WITH FORGED CHECKS.

Yesterday was the busiest day there has yet been at the headquarters of the Irish Parliamentary Fund Association. Eagene Keily was on band early and at intervals during the day nearly all the members of the committee dropped in and discussed eagerly the sinister aspect of affairs in Ireland. They have been all disappended at the lone of the Queen's speech. But the attitude of Parnell and Giadstone, seeming to indicate a possible future alliance between them for the purpose of carrying a measure of home rule, has had the effect of making the friends of the cause on this side of the Atlantic hopeful. Mayor Byrne, of Cinciunati, said that he had a letter from Philadelphia saying that the second city in the Union was about to wheel into line, and that when the committee was fully organized it would be found to be the most potent auxiliary of the parent branch. There are many lest souls among us in the corral, A soul may be lost long before it drops into hell—that word hell is an old-fashioned word and is going out of use, but it is a strong word, though its primitive meaning has been changed. Whatever does not contribute to elevate the spiritual life is so much toward the loss of a soul, and it is only by an earnest and conscientious belief in Christ that alost soul may be saved."

A STATEMENT.

sary a few words on my part. The only question at issue is, Who owns, who is alone entitled to the use of the trade-mark, which was invented and paid for by O. S. Baldwin, and obtained by him from the United States Patent Office ! The following advertisement opens other questions, and refers to

From the New-York Daily Papers, January 14. THE PUBLIC SHALL, NOT BE DECEIVED BY THE MANIFESTO OF O. S. BALDWIN, THE CLOTH-IER, IN "THE TIMES" AND "TRIBUNE" OF 13TH INST.

The facts of the case, so far as the public is concerned are simply these:

Mr. O. S. Baidwin was never in business on the corner of Breadway and Canal-st., except as an employe of Carhar, Whitford, and Company.

This was also true of the establishment in Brooklyn, up to September, 1884, when we sold out the lease, goodwill and remaining stock, not to Mr. Baldwin, but to Messrs, Smith, Gray, and Company, of Williamsburg, who are now, or were up to a very recent period, the proprietors of that store.

The trade-mark of BALDWIN, the Clothier, if valuable, was made so at the expense and under the management of Carhart, Whitford, and Company, who always selected and sup illed the goods sold under that name, Mr. Baldwin never having owned a dollar's worth of the goods nor had any interest whatever in the profits of the business.

He has never since had any of the goods which made the popularity of the establishment, nor can he get them; but they are to be found still at the old corner in full supply at all times.

The public can thus take their choice between Baldwin without the goods and the goods without Endwin.

The following has been kindly handed me by Messra. mith, Gray, and Company:

An advertisement which appeared in the New-York daily papers (January 14), signed "E. H. Carhart, W. H. Whitford, J. B. Van Wagegen, surviving members of the firm of Carbert, Whitford, and Company," says that they " sold out the lease, good will and remaining stock of the retail clothing store (BALDWIN, the Clothier, Brooklyn) to Smith, Gray, and Company, September 1 1884." We attribute this erroneous statement to want of accurate memory, as no lease was transferred to us or "good-will" purchased of said firm. When Carbart, Whitford, and Company failed, in June, 1884, we did only of them a few thousand dollars' worth of ready-made clothing, a portion of which was our own manufacture. They were making liberal reductions to buyers at that boys' and children's clothing (sold by BALDWIN, the Clothier, by retail) for a period of about sixteen years, under directions of O. S. Baldwin (BALDWIN, the Clother). In every instance we used our own patterns, and constructed the boys' and children's clothing under instructions and suggestions from O. S. Baldwin (BALD-WIN, the Clothier) his accredited superintendent.

We always understood that BALDWIN, the Clothler managed the business corner of Canal st. and Broad way, New-York City, and that the clothing was disposed of by him on commission or percentage.

As to the statement about " selling out lease to Smith. Gray, and Company," the following receipt, which at pears written on the lease I have in my possession, answer KNOW ALLMEN BY THESE PRESENTS: That we, th undersigned lessees, in consideration of one dollar to us in hand paid by ORAN S. BALDWIN, lessor, do, for ourselves, our executors, administrators, bargain, sell, surrender 1884, to the said lessor, his heirs and legal representatives the within lease and the premises therein mentioned, and the term of six months therein yet to come, with all on rights and interests therein.

I received for clothing sold by me on cor over EIGHTEEN MILLIONS OF DOLLARS, losses meantime less than eighteen bundred dollars. This fact nakes the following paragraph in the foregoing adver-

"Mr. O. S. Bultwin was never in business on the corner of Brosiway and Canal st., except as an employe of Carhart, Whitford, and Company."

In other advertisements, Jubilshed from time to time by the same firm, are the following extracts:

"N. B. -Thits establishment was conducted for seven-teen years under the trade-mark of BALDWIN, the Clothier. The change is in the name only, not in owner-ship or management."

"Carhart, Whitford, and Company would inform their many friends and customers that their Retail Departstucted by them," etc., etc The following card, from one of my confidential and rasted superintendents, speaks for itself: BROOKLYS, Jan. 16, 1896.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: This is to certify that for fifteen years I was in the employ of O. S. Baldwin, the clothier, as salesman, cashier and Superinten-dent of Manufacturing Department, and always acted under his sole directions. For about seven years I have piaced his orders with cutters and have made out tickets for workmen. The original boys' and children's patterns used by BALDWIN, the Clothier, for all this time. were not cut by Carhart, Whitford, and Company. The fabrics for all youths', boys' and children's clothing sold by retail at Canal-st. and Broadway were always elected by Mr. Baldwin and myself, and in no instance that I recall was his taste or judgment questioned. He always decides all questions that ever came up in both the men's and boys' retail warerooms.

PHILIP HABERLEIN. BALDWIN, the Clothier, aid all the advertising and djusted all bills, using such methods as he thought best, without ever consulting with any one. Among other original mediums adopted is the well-known publication, Ealdwin's Monthly, copyrighted, edited and published by O. S. Baldwin (BALDWIN, the Clothier), at the Haldwin Building," Brooklyn.

This card is from my printer, and needs no com-TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: For the last sixteen rears Buldwin's Monthly has been printed in this office, and we have always taken orders relating to same from O. S. Baldwin (BALDWIN, the Clothier) direct. All the selections and authors' manuscripts have been furnished by O. S. Baldwin. Every line of editorial has come to us in the handwriting of O. S. Baldwin (BALDWIN, the Clothier), the editor of said publication. We have made all the contracts with and received pay of Mr. Baldwin, at his office. Broadway and Canal-st., for all the printing we have done. We have never known any other person in all the transactions we have had with Mr. Baldwin for general printing and publishing Baldsein's Monthly.

J. K. LEFS,
Printer, 169 and 170 Falton-st., New-York. Opinions may differ as to what one has to do before it can be said that he "manages a business or is in busi-" So far as I am concerned, I placed my trade mark (BALDWIN, the Clothier) on the building at the northeast corner of Canal-st. and Broadway, New-York, February, 1868, without consultation with any one, and it remained there by agreement with the bead of the concern. Thomas F. Carhart, I to sell all the goods to be disposed of by retail, on commission, and have control of the retail departments. In fact, every rule that governed the men's and boys' retail warerooms was Sales in Boys' Department, for clothing cut, trimmed and made by patterns not originated or cut by Carhart, Whitford, and Company, reached the sum of over three hundred thousand dollars before that firm began selling boys' and children's clothing in their wholesale lofts. The wholesale business of Carbart, Whitford, and Com pany, " managed and conducted " by them, second floor and over the retair wavercoms northeast corner of Canalst. and eroadway, WERE VISITED BY ME BUT FIVE TIMES IN THE SEVENTEEN YEARS referred to. No one ever indersed a check drawn to order of O. S. Baldwin, or BALDWIN, the Clothier, except myself and my sons, S. S. Baldwin and S. D. baldwin, who held a power of attorney from me for that purpose,

As to the "trade-mark being made valuable at the extense of Carhart, Whitford, and Company," I have to say that I was the manager of the business over my own trade-mark (BALDWIN, the Ciothier), and always acted in_all matters without interference from any one. Upon the entire business by the head of the firm (Thomas F. Carhart now deec sad), and, with thanks, declined the compliment, preferring the place where all sales made ciston may be stated thus: BALDWIN, the Clothler, has never failed, but has always paid one hundred cents on subsisting between us is about to terminate-on the last day of the present month-and that the signs about our premises hearing your name are to be removed in consequence, we would suggest that, as we have not yet decided as to the change which we shall make in them, they be allowed to remain as they are until new ones can be prepared, say not later than the first day of March next. We remain yours, very truly, CARHART, WHITFORD, AND COMPANY. Whenever and wherever BALDWIN, the Clothier, has sold goods of his own. or for others under his own name or trade-mark, on commission or percentage, he has never had either his name or trade-mark wiped out and substituted by that of an Assignee.

Believing the public will decide justly as to the rights of O. S. Baidwin and the course taken by other parties that are, without authority. making use of his ratented trade-mark, BALDWIN, THE CLOTHIER, the question is respectfully submitted to the public.

I have, since February, 1885, when I quit New-York, given my undivided attention to the business at " Baldwin Building," Brooklyn. I have no business interests o. S. BALDWIN (BALDWIN, the Clothier).

P. S .- Po put at rest any doubt there may be in the ds of the "surviving partners of Carhart, Wuitford. and Company," or of the firm of Hackett, Carbart, and Company, as to whether I am, or may become, personally responsible for any merchandise, I would say that in August and September last I gave orders on my own account to domestic and foreign woollen mills for Spring and Summer plece goods (now in course of construction that will produce over $200,000 worth of men's and boys' garments that I shall begin to place on the table in the " Baldwin Building " March 1.
